among them and may be establish appropriate regional mechanisms, he said. As such, China is open to cooperation with all its neighbours so that Asia-Pacific will continue to be a peaceful, stable and prosperous region. "We are following developments in the region very closely and hopefully other countries will have the same approach as we have," he said, responding to a question on quadrilateral dialogue between India, Japan, US and Australia.

it to life". Between the Indus, which originates in the west of the Tibet plateau, and the Tsangpo-Siang in the east, there are six major rivers flowing from Tibet to India. These rivers are crucial for India's agricultural and industrial needs. As of 2016, China had plans to build 32 dams on the rivers and tributaries, raising concerns among people in lower riparian states. In 2015, for example, China operationalised the largest dam in the Tibet Autonomous Region in the middle reaches of the river. "Located in the Gyaca County, Shannan Prefecture, the Zam hydropower station harnesses the rich water resources of the Yarlung Tsangpo River, a major river which flows through Tibet," official Xinhua news agency had reported at the time

Aadhaar a threat to national government had already issued more than 100 orders and notifications to address the glitches in the implementation of Aadhaar. The government counsel also told the court that fake reports were being spread about Aadhaar linking, including how the unique ID was being made compulsory for CBSE students to appear in Class 10 and 12 exams. As court said that the challenge to Aadhaar law would be heard by the five-judge Constitution bench, the issue of extending the deadline for linking Aadhaar with bank accounts, PAN, mobile numbers and other schemes for those who don't have the unique identification number is now on the backburner.
